4.10 JESUS LOVES CHILDREN

MARK 10:1-16

One day, Jesus was teaching in a place called Judea. A large crowd once again had gathered to hear Him speak. Jesus was getting used to this! He was glad to teach this group of people, too.

The Pharisees were also there. These were religious men who didn't like Jesus. They asked Him difficult questions they thought he couldn't answer. But Jesus answered every question. They couldn't argue with Him because His answers were so clear. It made them even more angry with him.

During this time of teaching, many people wanted Jesus to touch their children. They knew Jesus was so special that if He touched their children, the children would be blessed. Maybe they would be healed of a disease; maybe they would be kinder to each other; maybe they would live good lives and serve God. Whatever reason they were thinking, many people brought their children to Jesus.

The disciples thought this was a waste of Jesus' time. They spoke to the parents and told them to get back, to not bother Jesus by bringing their children to Him. But when Jesus noticed this, He was very displeased with His followers. He knew they were wrong to keep the children away. He then said to the disciples, "Let the children come to Me. Don't stop them! God's kingdom belongs to people who are like little children." Children easily believe, they easily trust, they easily love. Jesus told them that unless they believe and accept God's kingdom like a little child does, they will never get in. The disciples knew that Jesus spoke the truth, so they stepped back and let the children through.

Therefore, Jesus continued to welcome the children. He gathered them in His arms, just like a mom or a dad would do, or like a grandmother or grandfather would do. He held them up. He showed them how much He loved them. Then, He laid His hands on them and blessed them. That must have been such a special moment, not only for the children but also for their parents.

The parents were happy.

The children were welcomed.

The disciples learned an important lesson.

Jesus showed everyone that children are important to God. Jesus loves children. He cares about them. He wants them to come near to Him.

Jesus loves you too. You are important to Him. You can come to Jesus, trust Him, talk to Him, and receive His love.

Key Verse Mark 10:14 "Let the little children come to Me, and do not stop them."
